Mme. Calmann-Levy, widow of the famous Franch publisher, has bought the library of Ernest Ronae with a view of making a present of it to the State. This Temps states that the sale as well as the gift to the State will be definitely made in due form to-day before Me. Massion, notary of Paris.

It appears that offers for this library had previously been received from Boston, Obicago and Frankfort, but that Mme. Calmann-Levy intervoede so that the library should not go outside France. Her offer was a sceepted with joy by the son and daughter of the great writer—M. Ary Renan and Mme. Peichari.

The collection which, through the public spritedness of Mmc. Calmann-Levy, will in a first part of this library, containing 2,875 volumes, is made up of works on viriantial and Biblical history. The other part is made up of works on various subjects, inostly philosophical.
